

Reproduction of Library Materials

Readers are permitted to photograph library materials as per the following terms and conditions. Signing the Library Readers Application Form confirms that you have read and understood the terms below and indicates that you agree to comply with them.

Images may only be used for personal research purposes.

Requests to publish images taken of Chawton House material, whether in print or online, or for commercial or non-commercial reasons must be addressed in writing to the Curator at curator@chawtonhouse.org

Photographs must be taken without flash.

All material is subject to UK copyright law. It is your responsibility to ensure that you do not contravene this. This outline does not constitute legal guidance or advice.

In copyright

- Only small extracts of copyright material may be reproduced, up to 5% per volume.
- Reproductions of complete works cannot be made and only one article per periodical.
- Reproductions may be made for the purposes of research and private study, not for any commercial purpose.
- Do not assume that an historic work is out of copyright.

Chawton House does not accept responsibility for the interests of any copyright owner who may be involved. Responsibility for establishing the copyright owner and obtaining permission lies with the person quoting and/or publishing material.

Please note, all unpublished manuscript material remains in copyright until 2039.
